Gov. DiSalle Will Address Ohio Legislature

General Assembly Plans To Wind Up First Week's Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Republican-led 105th General Assembly began its 1963 session Monday and plans to wind up a short week's work today by hearing Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's swan-song State-of-the-State message.

The first day's housekeeping session was strictly routine. Everything happened that was supposed to happen.

There was no advance indication of the content of DiSalle's speech preparatory to turning over the reins of government to his Republican successor, James A. Rhodes. For the first time in four years of addressing the legislature, DiSalle will speak without a prepared text.

In addition to the formal election of legislative leaders chosen earlier in party caucuses, the General Assembly:

—Pushed through resolutions employing the help needed to run the legislative session.

—Pushed practically halfway to enactment an emergency bill making hundreds of technical changes in state laws needed to clean up errors. The bill, first to be introduced, was scheduled for House passage today and similar quick treatment in the Senate.

Sen. Charles Stanley Mechem, Nelsonville Republican, took his oath for a fifth term as Senate majority leader as he entered his 20th year as a member of the Senate. He is serving his last term because his senatorial district was abolished as a result of the 1960 census.

Naragon Is Re-elected President

Board Makes Application to Obtain Old Postal Building

O. A. Naragon was elected Monday night as president of the Salem City Board of Education at the annual re-organization meeting when the board took formal action to acquire the old Post Office building at the downtown corner of State and Lincoln as an administration headquarters.

Naragon will be starting his fourth term as school board president.

Also re-elected was Gail C. Herron, trucking firm head, who will be serving his fourth year as vice-president.

W. N. King was retained as clerk. He is serving the last half of his second two-year term.

In other action, the board voted to meet the third Thursday of each month as it did the latter part of 1962.

A temporary three-month appropriation of $397,603 was adopted to permit the school administration to pay bills in the first quarter of this year until the permanent appropriation is okayed in the spring.

Apply to Government

Supt. of Schools Paul E. Smith announced that formal application will be made Friday to the federal government for the acquisition of the old post office building.

Upon the approval of the Board of Education, the application was drawn up by Smith, Assistant Supt. D. W. Fadely and Clyde Wright, supervisor of maintenance.

Smith said the detailed forms would be mailed first to Walter G. Rhoten, chief of the State Agency for Property Unit Utilization of the Department of Education. Following Mr. Rhoten's approval, the application will be forwarded to the Chicago office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The board's chief interest in the building is for administrative offices, maintenance headquarters, stock and book room for the entire school system, reading laboratory, curriculum laboratory and offices for the nurse, pupil personnel and psychologist.

Smith reviewed for the Board last night the benefits of obtaining the building for these purposes. Transferring the administrative offices and others listed in the application would provide more classroom space at the Junior High School on N. Lincoln. The third floor room now occupied by the psychologist could

Marquis Picked In Hanoverton

Council President Succeeds Wilson

HANOVERTON—J. A. Marquis, local businessman, was sworn in Monday night by village solicitor Warren Bettis as a new member of Council and was elected forthwith as the governing body's president.

Marquis assumes the chair of George Wilson, who conducted his first Council meeting as mayor last night following the resignation of Howard Hart. The new Council member will also take over duties on all committees on which Wilson served.

Mayor Wilson announced he would not select a replacement for ousted marshal Donald Sheen until after it appears that Sheen will not appeal the case. Atty. Bettis said Sheen can appeal within a 20-day period from the date of his Dec. 31 dismissal.

Council, acting under suspension of rules, passed an emergency measure providing that the east end of Howard St. from the property line of Henry Loudon to

Feed Store Reports $450 Loss In Theft

Discovery was made Monday of the theft of approximately $450 in cash from the Salem Cash & Carry Feed Store, 515 W. State St.

Sam Moore, general manager, reported to police that the money was evidently taken during the previous night "by someone probably familiar with the store." The premises were not ransacked.

The money was taken from a container in the main milling room where a blue draw string money bag held $50 in change and a zipper bag held about $400 in bills and approximately $40 in checks.

Police also received a complaint Monday of petit larceny and one of property damage.

Regis James Donnelly of 1008 E. 3rd St. complained to police that while his car was parked in front of 468 S. Broadway from 10:15 to 11 p.m. Monday, someone broke the aerial on the automobile.

Harold Shears of 950 W. State St. reported that someone slugged his coin changer at the Laundromat, 950 W. State St., taking $2.75 in change.

Fourth Grade Teacher Hired

Blythe Re-Elected By United Board

Officers were elected and other business was transacted when the United Local Board of Education met Monday.

Re-elected were Walter Blythe, president, and Willard Cope, vice president. Other members are Paul Gipp, Elmer Stamp and Oran Weingart.

Miss Anna Margaret Hamilton of Lisbon was hired to replace Mrs. David Barrow as fourth grade teacher for the remainder of the school year. Miss Hamilton had been employed as a teller at the Farmers National Bank in Lisbon.

The board approved the following temporary appropriations to be made including certifications from the following funds so that expenditures may be legalized: general fund, $139,300; cafeteria fund, $18,500; and Title III fund, $1,500 for a total of $159,300.

Since finances for 1963 are not forthcoming from either the county or the state foundation program until late February or early March the board authorized the borrowing of up to $30,000 from the Farmers National Bank at Hanoverton to pay necessary obligations until revenue is received from either the county or the state auditor.

C. E. BRAUTIGAM, executive head, reported a balance at the end of 1962 of $8,000 which represents the financial status of the board after the conversion of the bus garage into four elementary classrooms and the repair of the roof of the elementary building. It was also pointed out that the board realized only 95 per cent of the funds estimated a year ago to be available in 1962 from the county.

Joseph Marra, president of the United Teachers Association, expressed the group's appreciation for double pay made to the teachers Dec. 15 for the month of December in order to facilitate Christmas buying and to avoid having to mail checks at the end of the month when school was not in session.

Gerald Joy, a cafeteria worker, asked consideration in increasing his pay from 85 cents to one dollar.

Action Expected By Congress on Major Issues

President To Give Proposals Preview To Leaders Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy appeared today to be holding a slim margin in a tight struggle to clear the track for action in the new Congress on major segments of his legislative program.

Kennedy previews his proposals for leaders of both parties at a late afternoon White House conference in advance of Wednesday's formal opening of the 88th Congress.

Members who have discussed his program with him predicted no surprise requests. A possible exception could be a renewed recommendation for action on a bill to eliminate state literacy tests in voting—a measure the Senate killed last May.

As new members of the House and Senate made the round of coffee klatches and other get acquainted affairs, leaders quietly discussed the possibility of breaking up what promises to be a lengthy session with a summer recess.

House Democrats, called into caucus, were expected to give majority support to a move to retain the slim liberal margin on the powerful Rules Committee by keeping its membership at 15.

Kennedy has said his program will be bottled up if the committee reverts to conservative control in a 12-member lineup, as it would do unless the House acts affirmatively.

In the Senate, bipartisan liberals encountered rough going in a scheduled effort to change the rule that requires a two-thirds majority the right to end filibustering met some strong opposition.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois announced in advance of an afternoon party caucus that he is opposed to the majority vote proposal.

With Republicans filling only 33 of the Senate's 100 seats, Dirksen hinted broadly that he expects most GOP members to vote against the rules change proposal.

Southern opponents of civil rights legislation were called into session by Sen. Richard B. Russell D-Ga., to map a filibuster against the rules proposal.

NEW GOVERNOR, NEW SENATOR CONFER—New Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh, left, and new U.S. Senator J. Howard Edmondson, right, are pictured together in Oklahoma City following the funeral of Sen. Robert S. Kerr. In political maneuvering Jan. 6, Edmondson resigned as governor, allowing Nigh, who was Lt. Governor, to succeed him. Nigh's first official act was to appoint Edmondson to the Senate seat left vacant by Kerr's death. Edmondson is 37, Nigh 35.

To Halt Communist Subversion

U.S. Seeks More Pressure on Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States sought today to rally stronger pressures against Cuba—still the base for an estimated 16,000 to 17,000 Soviet soldiers—as the next step in an effort to end the Communist threat in the hemisphere.

U.S. officials believe the campaign may be long and difficult.

The United States and the Soviet Union put a formal and diplomatic end to the Cuban crisis Monday with a letter announcing the conclusion of their talks.

The letter, from U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, acknowledged they had not been able to "resolve all the problems that have arisen in connection" with the crisis.

But they said they hoped that the "actions taken to avert the threat of war" will lead, "toward the adjustment of other differences" between the two countries.

One issue still remaining is that of Cuba itself.

The U.S. government, Washington officials stated, stands firmly committed to President Kennedy's promise to try to halt Cuban subversion and to his proposition that "the Cuban people shall some day be truly free."

Approves $491,003 Appropriation

Leetonia School Board Elects Dr. Paul Conrad

LEETONIA — Dr. Paul Conrad was elected president when the Leetonia Board of Education held a reorganizational meeting Monday night at Orchard Hill School. He succeeds Dr. Paul Beaver. Wayne Holloway was named vice president.

The board approved an appropriation of $491,003 to operate the school system during 1963. Operational costs last year totaled $486,014.

Board members voted to seek renewal of two operating levies totaling 8 mills at the May 7 primaries. The levies, one of 2 mills and the other of 6, would be in force for five years.

Permission was granted to elementary school principal Robert Scanlon to attend a meeting of the Ohio Association of Elementary Principals at Columbus Feb. 7-9, and Victor Wood, superintendent, to attend a meeting of the Ohio School Superintendents Association at Atlantic City Feb. 15-20.

The board approved purchase of two 16 millimeter film projectors and other visual aid equipment.

Completion of a school bus shelter on Rt. 344 near Franklin Square was reported. The school board provided funds, and parents of students constructed the shelter.

The board appointed Mrs. Alfred Lee to a seven-year term on the Leetonia Public Library Board. She succeeds Ross Mellin.

Harold Astry Files As Primary Candidate

State Gets 14 Other Bids On Salem Project

$637,838 Is Best; Contract Letting Delayed Few Days

The firm of Wander & Mason of Worthington, near Columbus, was the apparent low bidder on the Salem grade separation project when bids were opened at 10 this morning in the State Highway Department offices at Columbus.

The Worthington firm's bid was $637,838.65, which was $158,163 under the state's $796,000 estimate.

Fifteen Ohio firms bid on the Salem project it was reported by the contract sales department of the highway department.

The state reported that a contract probably would be awarded within a few days after all bids had been reviewed.

Other Bidders

Earl Newell & Son of Columbiana was the only county firm bidding on the job. Their bid was $675,351.63.

Youngstown companies submitting bids were:

Joseph Bucheit & Sons, $681,839.15.

Kane Brothers & Clyde L. Moore, $751,835.69.

A. P. O'Hara Co., $673,480.71.

Porterfield & Binger, $737,832.53.

The bids and state estimate were much lower than the original unofficial estimate for building the overpass. City officials and the city's engineer on the job, Rackoff Associates, has been using a figure of $1,365,693, which the city's cost of only five per cent to be $66,694. State and federal funds are expected to shoulder most of the expense.

In Mill Since 1960

The two-lane overpass has been in the mill since 1960. However, serious talk about the need for a bridge over the railroad tracks was heard decades ago. Discussion about the city's need for an overpass ensued at City Council meetings in many years past.

On Dec. 15, 1960, The Salem News carried a front page story saying that Mayor Dean B. Cranmer would soon ask City Council for permission to study an overpass project. The mayor did so on Dec. 20, 1960.

In following months, city officials pondered possible means of financing the project. Mayor Cranmer urged that the city's share of the overpass cost be defrayed by city income tax money rather than by a property tax levy.

Sought State Aid

On March 24, 1961, the mayor wrote to William McKenna, director of Division 11, State Highway Department, New Philadelphia, asking for assistance from the state highway department in the procedure in programming a grade separation for the Pennsylvania Railroad at its intersection with States Routes 62 and Alternate 14 within the municipal corporation.

"We have a very difficult situation as Salem is divided by the Pennsylvania Railroad," Mayor Cranmer wrote McKenna.

"All police and fire protection are on the east side of the railroad at the City Hall. As there are no overpasses or overpasses on any of the six crossings inside Salem or the two crossings outside the city, we are faced with a problem of providing the people on the west side the proper protection of police and fire since the Pennsylvania now uses the Fort Wayne Division Main Line for all fast freights and is not using the Bayard cut-off for these fast freights."

"We have an average of 15 to 20 freight trains east and a like

President Still Seems Reluctant To 'Declare War' on Congress

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's reluctance to have pitched battles with Congress for his programs has caused some puzzlement and criticism. He's still reluctant.

But for this he has reasons, although they may not please everyone.

They can be put together from what he said in his hour-long television interview last month and what was told reporters covering his Christmas vacation at Palm Beach.

Some of the reasons are fear for his popularity if he got into tangles with Congress and, if he did, that his chances for re-election in 1964 would suffer.

He has a reluctance to "raise hell" if he's not sure of winning, and he doubts he could damage some of his conservative opponents because they're too well entrenched with their own voters back home.

Nevertheless, his favorable biographer, Professor James MacGregor Burns, said a week ago on television that Kennedy's place among the best presidents will pretty much depend on whether he "can solve his problem with Congress."

Burns indirectly suggested Kennedy, like President Franklin D. Roosevelt did, pays too much attention to the House and Senate committee chairmen and not enough to the rank and file in Congress.

Kennedy's tactics, while they actually involve the basic questions of presidential popularity and leadership, happen to be exactly the same as those used by his predecessor, President Eisenhower.

In both cases the tactics have been simple and obvious: Try persuasion mildly with Congress but, even though the programs get chopped up or slaughtered, nobody ever gets mad at anybody.

This worked all right for Eisenhower. He remained highly popular eight years and got re-elected without trouble. So far it's worked for Kennedy. He's highly popular although he thinks he may have trouble in 1964.

In his television interview Kennedy gave these views:

The 1962 elections didn't change much in Congress (his Democrats, far outnumbering the Republicans, still run the show) and that any time he offers a controversial bill he'll win or lose by three or four votes.

He said a President can get an insignificant program through all right, but "if it is significant and affects important interests and is controversial . . . there is a fight and the President is never wholly successful."

Since he feels the going will be tough and the outcome questionable on much he says he wants, then his statement—"There is no sense in raising hell, and then not being successful"—becomes a handy excuse for raising no hell at all.

At Palm Beach reporters were told:

He's glad the opinion polls give him a high popularity rating. But he thinks this popularity is readily translated into congressional action only when he speaks on major issues of national security.

When a chief executive has to go repeatedly to bat for controversial domestic programs, Kennedy is convinced, the popularity melts away and he comes a special pleader or party manager.

And, since he feels he faces a hard battle for re-election, he's in no mood to declare war on Congress, particularly one run by his own party.

And, besides, Kennedy has this attitude toward some of the committee chairmen who opposed or blocked major legislation last year: Well they helped him on other things and will help him on other things again.

Eisenhower didn't let his popularity melt by warring with Congress. As of now, Kennedy doesn't intend to, either. But Eisenhower was in a different spot: For six of his eight years he dealt with a Congress run by Democrats.

The Congress Kennedy is dealing with is packed with his own party members.

Kennedy To Meet With Congressional Leaders

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—His holiday over, President Kennedy returns to the capital today on the eve of the new Congress and immediately maps out for its leaders the course on which he wants to steer the nation.

Barely an hour after his arrival, he will greet in the White House the 16 congressional leaders of both parties.

After attending a formal dinner at the French Embassy, he will take part in ceremonies at the National Gallery of Art opening a special exhibition of Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the Mona Lisa. The painting is on loan from the Louvre in Paris.

Sitting in on the White House session with congressional leaders will be ice President Lyndon B. Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Much has gone on since Congress adjourned last Oct. 13—the Cuban crisis, the Sino-Soviet rift, the decisions on canceling the Skybolt missile and on nuclear power for American allies in Europe, and the Communist Chinese thrust across India's frontier.

Over the long term, the President's concern and hope is perhaps greatest in the foreign policy area. But the calendar may force him to give most of his immediate attention to domestic matters.

With the 88th Congress convening Wednesday, Kennedy must plot a campaign to win favorable action on his domestic programs—some of which have died several deaths in the recent past.

Included in the 1963 program are such touchy items as proposed tax cuts, medical care for the aged, aid to education and a new farm program.

The first big test facing Kennedy in Congress will come on a House vote which he hopes will enlarge the conservative-dominated Rules Committee from 12 members to 15. Unless he can win places for more friends on the committee, Kennedy is convinced the bill-routing rules group will kill his domestic program.

Officials deduced some clever convict at Folsom State Prison, where the plates are manufactured, must have a sense of humor.

Union, Publishers Will Confer With Cleveland Mayor

CLEVELAND (AP) — Publishers of the Plain Dealer and the Press and News and representatives of two striking unions meet with Mayor Ralph Locher today to give the mayor a first-hand report on a strike against the two daily newspapers. Federal mediator Gilbert J. Seldin also will be present.

The mayor said Monday in calling the meetings that "the public interest demands that there be a settlement" of the 40-day-old walkout. He said he had no proposals to make at this time but wanted to hear from both sides before deciding what action he can take.

"We wish to resume publication at the earliest possible moment,"

Thomas Vail, vice president of the Plain Dealer, said in a statement accepting the mayor's invitation. "If the mayor can be helpful in achieving this end it would be, in my opinion, in the best interests of everyone."

The Cleveland Newspaper Guild said it was happy to accept the mayor's call to a City Hall meeting, saying it has a "policy of cooperation with any agency sincerely interested in reaching an honorable settlement of the strike issues."

It said, however, that "other unions employed by the publishers are without contracts and must be considered in any moves to settle the present work stoppage."

Management is negotiating on new contracts with 10 other unions in addition to the Guild and new contracts with 10 other unions in addition to the Guild and Teamsters Union.

Ohio Legislature Hampered By Printing Contract Hassle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new Ohio Legislature is faced with the grave problem that it has resolutions — and stuff — everywhere, but not a drop of ink.

For the first time in a half-century, the legislature doesn't have a printer.

Nor could Senate Republicans Monday night make up their minds to authorize emergency authority to the clerks of the two Houses to arrange a stopgap printing setup pending disposition of a lawsuit over the legislative printing contract.

As a result, none of the mass of printing accumulated during the opening day of the session Monday can be done. Not even the daily journals of the two Houses can be printed.

The F. J. Heer Printing Co. of Columbus, until recently headed by Walter Heer who has just retired after many years as Franklin County (Columbus) Democratic chairman, has done most of the state's printing for 50 years.

Suddenly, a few weeks ago, the Columbus Blank Book Co. submitted a bid to break the Heer monopoly on legislative printing. The bid of Columbus Blank Book was about 25,000—or 8 per cent—below Heer's.

The contract was awarded to Columbus Blank Book, but veteran Senate Clerk Tom Bateman told Finance Director James Maloon he felt Heer was the only Columbus printer equipped to produce legislative printing under a tight time schedule. The result was that the State Controlling Board suspended competitive bidding rules and awarded the contract to Heer.

Columbus Blank Book went to Common Pleas Court, which held the board abused its discretion. The court reversed the board and awarded the contract to Columbus Blank Book. The state appealed—and that is where the case rests now with the legislature needing printing service.

The case probably won't be argued before the appellate court before next Wednesday.

The House, in view of the emergency, shoved through a joint resolution authorizing the clerks of the two Houses to make emergency printing arrangements. The vote was 101-3.

Several hours later, both Republicans and Democrats caucused in the Senate—and nothing happened. The Senate reconvened after the caucuses, then adjourned until today.

Those who know legislative business inside and out concede that the legislative wheels will grind to a halt in a matter of days unless the impasse is broken.

Congress For the 88th Time

By the time Congress comes to the end of the 88th session now getting under way, no one will be paying attention to its debates and decisions.

Only one thing can save it from the obscurity that has been the lot of all congresses in recent years—a decision by the White House to go to the mat with one or more of its leaders over a sensitive popular issue.

The problem of underwriting the ever-rising cost of medical care for the aged sick could do this. A tax cut could do it. A few other sensitive subjects might do it.

But unless the head of the executive branch of the government gives Congress a chance to stand in the spotlight with him, it is destined to do its work in relative obscurity under the guidance of relatively obscure men.

How many adults since the death of Sam Rayburn and the election of Lyndon G. Johnson to the vice presidency can think offhand of the name of the speaker of the House of Representatives and the majority leader of the Senate?

THE LAST of the great legislative personalities passed when Ohio's Robert A. Taft died. There has not been since his time any man in either the Senate or the House who commanded respect for the clarity of his thought.

The strong men in the legislative branch have been known only for the efficacy of their action. They have been famous for their single-minded devotion to the narrow interests of their state, or some particular economic group. But in recent years they have not been respected for the breadth of their knowledge or the strength of their grasp of the national interest.

The concentration of popular interest on the presidency at the expense of Congress has been growing for a generation.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt relegated Congress to the role of rubber-stamping the proposals of his Harvard advisers starting in 1933, then followed this constitutional departure by a studied policy of vilification, he started something that has shown no sign of being stopped.

Harry Truman was gentler with his former legislative friends than his predecessor and Dwight Eisenhower, leaned over backward to avoid downgrading the legislative branch. But Congress has not recovered its old-time prestige nor is it likely to—while the White House monopolizes the news and can claim sole credit for ideas.

The White House proposes and Congress disposes. What should be its exclusive powers, principally the power to originate expenditures and the taxes required to balance them, have been weakened or abandoned.

PERHAPS there is nothing alarming in this.

It is conceivable that in the evolution of the republic the function of the House of Representatives and the Senate will be altered from that described in the Constitutional Convention until it is unrecognizable.

It is also conceivable that the new form of the republic will work as well as the form it will have replaced worked at its best.

But it is not conceivable at this time that Congress ever will be restored to the eminence it occupied when it was the dominant branch of government and gave the executives the option of getting into line or dropping out of the procession.

Tax Reforms May Erase Benefits of Proposed Cut

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Tinkering with the tax laws in the year 1963 may throw a monkey wrench into the operations of the national economy. Taking away deductions and exemptions for various items hitherto granted can affect many a business.

On the surface it has been made to appear that on individual incomes the are going to get a reduction in taxes and that they'll have more money to spend but it could turn out that many individuals will have less income after taxes. It all depends, not on what tax rates will be changed, but on whether historic principles imbedded in the tax structure for 40 years are to be uprooted in new legislation.

Thus, people of higher incomes are being entranced at present by the idea that the maximum tax rate will come down from 91 to 63.5 per cent. This will cost the government only $250 million in revenue, but the Treasury experts have already begun to figure out ways that they can collect an extra billion by new provisions in the law called "tax reform." This would be felt also by persons in the middle brackets, who may find certain deductions repealed or reduced.

ALL SORTS of ideas for "reform" have been advanced. Some will never be enacted, but it will be months before the persons affected will really know whether they are going to be penalized or let alone.

Take, for instance, what is known as capital gains taxes.

This is different from ordinary income taxes because, in effect, a flat 25 per cent rate is used. If, for example, more than a year ago you bought a property for $16,000 and now sell it for $20,000, your "capital gain" is $4,000 and the government gets a fourth, or $1,000, in capital gains taxes.

Reports from Capital Hill are that the Treasury wants Congress to hike the capital gains tax on all kinds of property, including stocks and bonds. The citizen will wonder: should he sell property now or can he wait a year? Shall he sell his stocks and bonds or wait? If there is a general tendency to sell, how will it affect markets? What impact will it have on real estate values and on new construction?

Another "reform" talked about is in connection with estate taxes. At present, no capital gains tax is paid when a house or other property is sold after death. Only the usual inheritance - tax rate applies. But, under the proposed "reforms," the estate would pay both a capital gains tax and an estate tax. What will this do to bequests and wills which were drawn up years ago by citizens who figured out what money they would be able to leave to care for their children in case of death? Many people of middle age die accidentally and leave money to educate their growing children. More funds will have to be provided now if a capital gains tax as well as an inheritance tax is to be imposed.

MANY PEOPLE, especially in the retired class, have invested in state and municipal securities, the annual income from which is immune from federal income taxes. In administration circles, there is talk of repealing this exemption and imposing the regular taxes on the income from all securities.

Married couples are permitted to make a return on their combined income. This has the effect of lowering their taxes, especially if one or the other has no income. When both husband and wife have income, they can also, under present law, take certain exemptions and deductions together. Now there are plans to repeal this privilege of making a joint return. Millions of persons will find their planning in disarray because they will not know till late in 1963 or perhaps 1964 whether joint returns will be abolished and higher tax rates will apply to each individual.

There is talk, moreover, of ending the exemption for income received through the Social Security system. This will affect adversely those older people who have small incomes and have counted on the exemption from taxation of such money returned to them, because they have paid it for many years into the Social Security system.

Another "reform" being suggested is that tax benefits for retired people and homeowners be reduced. It is being suggested also that deductions be ended for interest paid on personal debts and for various kinds of charitable contributions as well as for payments made on state and local taxes.

SOME OF THESE proposals may never be passed by Congress, but the country will have to go through a period of puzzlement and uncertainty before the final touches are placed on the tax "reform" bill.

The strategy of the administration is first to try to get the cut on tax rates into law, and then, when the nation begins to grow fearful about the enormous deficit — which will be widely publicized — the case for "plugging loopholes" and eliminating a lot of exemptions so as to raise revenues will be emphasized.

Altogether, it's to be a year of "agonizing reappraisal" of one's personal affairs. That's not the kind of atmosphere which is conducive to spending or investing.

"I Feel Full of Beans—I Can Hardly Wait To Pigeon-Hole Some Vital Legislation"

Teamster Officials and the Trials

By VICTOR RIESEL

From Jimmy Hoffa's intimate circle comes word that he loves to boast of his muscle. Constantly he regales his close friends with tales of his physical prowess — how he does 50 push-ups before jumping into bed and then 50 more each morning after jumping out of bed. His muscle, it can be assumed, is as tough as his nerve.

But not even the case-hardened federal authorities believed his nerves were so steely that he would permit one of his closest associates, also under two federal criminal indictments, to do what was done to teamsters' dues during the climactic final days of the teamster chief's Nashville trial.

Hoffa's associate, tough Tony (Pro) Provenzano, an international teamster vice president, literally got himself one of the finest Christmas gifts in the land — a $25,000-a-year raise.

Though this brings Mr. Pro's basic salaries from the teamsters to $1,226.92 a week — and makes him one of the highest paid labor officials in the world — all this went unnoticed. For it all happened during the holiday season.

ON THE NIGHT of Dec. 20, there was a routine membership meeting of Pro's home local, the controversial New Jersey "560". This was held at the Union Club, 600 Hudson St., Hoboken, N. J.

It came only a few days after Pro was narrowly reelected president in a turbulent campaign during which Pro's men used loud and dutifully voted their chief a startling stream of Rabelaisian earholtsinnet on oionsito ppeh earthinness onto the opposition.

On that night, some 300 out of the local's 13,000 members went into the Union Club's ballroom and dutifully voted their chief a $488 a week raise. This more than doubled his previous local salary. It made him the highest paid local union president in the land — $45,800 a year plus expenses. As head or member of other governing bodies he draws other salaries.

The sheer magnitude of this galls the federal authorities. This is just the disdainful arrogance they are fighting throughout the teamsters. Yet the government finds on all sides that its efforts are being twisted everywhere into an alleged "vendetta" between Bobby Kennedy and Jimmy Hoffa.

IT IS THIS almost universal talk of a personal "feud" between the two men which has led the Department of Justice hesitating over retrying Hoffa in Nashville on the million-dollar-for-labor-peace charge. During the last week of December, Kennedy had virtually decided to retry Hoffa, who was out on a $3,000 bond. But they have not been eager to add to the so-called evidence of a "vendetta."

Hoffa now faces several trials and investigations. He'll be in federal court soon on the Sun Valley mail fraud indictment. He must face a civil trial in a suit brought by three former teamsters who claim he did them financial injury during the Test Fleet days.

But the federal men point out that Hoffa is merely part of the teamster picture. From New York City and Newark N.J., right on out of Los Angeles, there have been criminal trials and there will be of teamster officials. Some of the indicted or convicted members of the hierarchy are presidents or business agents of locals. Scores of thousands of dollars of union funds are involved.

In Los Angeles, for example, a trial of three ex-local officials is scheduled for Feb. 4. The charge is embezzlement of funds totaling more than $47,000, including two automobiles.

IN NEW YORK and New Jersey, five officials of two Jersey locals soon will be tried on charges of extortion.

In Charlotte, N.C., three local teamster officials, one its president, were recently sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary. They were convicted of embezzling $9,054 of the union's funds.

In Kansas City, three teamsters were convicted on Dec. 18 on charges of converting teamster union funds to their own use.

There is a former Detroit teamster business agent who takes some sort of prize in this weird game. He is Samuel J. Marroso, former business agent of Teamster Locals 247 and 614. He will do three years in a federal prison for transporting $256,000 in counterfeit Ohio Turnpike bonds from Miami to Nassau, Bahamas in 1961.

And there still are at least 14 grand juries now proving teamsters. One such investigation has been on for months, looking into the operations of the teamsters $180 million Central States pension fund.

If all this is a vendetta, Jimmy Hoffa is Snow White, with dwarfs.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I need your moral support. Last fall relatives who were vacationing in Europe brought us a gift — a Black Forest cuckoo clock, made in Germany. It is lovely to look at but have you ever tried to live with one?

Every hour, on the hour, we get a little song, like from a music box. Then the cuckoo coos and chimes ring out the hour. On the quarter hour we hear from the chimes — and the cuckoo again, on the half hour, another Strauss waltz, more cuckooing and more chimes. The clock also has a loud tic, like a fast table tennis game — all day and all night.

My husband and four little boys love it. It's driving me out of my mind. If I have to spend the rest of my life with this clock I'm afraid I'll be cuckoo. Is there a solution? —OUTNUMBERED

Dear Outnumbered: The human being is a remarkable animal. He can become accustomed to almost everything. Retool your thinking. View the cuckoo as the family pet. Many women make heroic sacrifices for their families. This can be yours.

Worse Than Serfdom

Dear Ann: I can't resist commenting on the letter from the married students who are getting their degrees with no help from home.

They were proud but exhausted. All around them were married kids driving good cars, wearing good clothes and collecting good-sized checks from parents. They wondered if doing it alone was "worth it."

I've been that route and I say it is worth it. Hang on to your independence, kids. I didn't and I'll always regret it.

My family could do nothing for me. My sweetheart's family was well-to-do. When we were juniors in college, she wanted to get married. Her folks pushed it. I didn't see how I could support a wife and go on to law school. They offered to foot the bills and, like a sap, I agreed.

Today, six years later, they are still running our lives. They bought us a home and furnished it. They have taken our children over completely. They are over here every night. If we don't consult them about everything they're hurt.

I know now that nothing is free. We paid an enormous price for their "help." —IN BONDAGE.

Dear In Bondage: Thanks for your letter. Here's another point of view.

Another Viewpoint

Dear Ann: To those college kids who are killing themselves doing it on their own I'd like to add 2 cents worth.

What are you trying to prove, anyway? Both my parents and my wife's parents helped us through school and it was wonderful. I'll be a practicing physician next spring and we already have two little boys. We could not have managed this on our own.

I've kept a careful record of what we owe our parents and eventually we will repay them in full. In the meantime, we've been able to lead a normal life, with plenty of time for rest, study and fun.

We have maintained and developed Berlin under tension. It is now must be our goal to continue to develop Berlin under conditions of a certain lessening of tension.

Politics And Puppy Tails

We don't know the "unimpeachable sources" named by Associated Press in its story saying President Kennedy is willing to settle for a gradual instead of a drastic tax cut.

But what we know about "unimpeachable sources" once as common in Washington as lawyers who formerly were jobholders but lately out of fashion, leads us to put

Would It Work?

The finance committee of City Council is studying the recent request of Salem firemen for a reduction of their work week from 72 to 56 hours.

This is not a new request. The police and firemen two years ago submitted a similar proposition to the voters after Council rejected it. The voters did, too.

No one will blame the firemen or the police for trying to get better working conditions. That would run contrary to human nature but one wonders sometimes why some municipal employees express such a dislike for a job which seemed so attractive when examinations were taken.

The decision on whether to bolster the fire department personnel to accommodate a three-platoon system needed on a 56-hour week system and also to grant police certain compensations they requested Dec. 18, probably will be based on available finances and knowing what will provide Salem citizens with the police and fire protection they must be guaranteed.

With the growing clamor everywhere toward a shorter work week, we've often wondered if smaller communities couldn't operate more efficiently and less-expensively with a combined police and fire department. Maybe it's working somewhere.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: How's the new year going, boy? Everything ippy-pippy? Or can't you notice any change?

I can't notice any change myself, but I wasn't looking for any. I liked the old year fine. I do not see how there could be any improvement.

No doubt there are people with just complaints about the way things turned out in 1962 — people justified in hoping the worst is behind them. But that's not the way I look at it.

Anyone still breathing on New Year's Eve had no cause to knock the old year by wishing the new one to be better. How good can a new year be?

But I had no intentions of writing about old years and new years. What I want to write about is collective responsibility in a representative democracy.

Lately, I have been rubbed raw by the view that if something goes wrong or turns out disappointing we can load the blame on an individual and walk away from disappointment with a clear conscience.

This is not my idea of the way popular government and popular sovereignty work. We are in everything jointly and must share responsibility jointly.

Unless we are willing to do this, we are stand popular sovereignty to mean that I personally am as responsible as anyone else for what is done in my name; that I cannot point my finger at someone else if things not ready for popular sovereignty. I undergo wrong and squeal, "Take it out on him! He did it."

There has been an opinion that President Kennedy personally is to blame for failure credence in the story. The Kennedy administration has resorted to an old dodge.

This would be in line with a maxim about public policy: It is cruel to cut off all a pup's tail at once but considerate to lop it off a little at a time.

President Kennedy's proposal for a tax cut to stimulate private enterprise was a shockingly constructive idea. Public opinion was taken by surprise.

AS ITS SUPPORT by business spokesmen clearly reveals, the idea is the essence of the kind of conservatism that most of the President's political backers shy away from. Or it would be if Mr. Kennedy had proposed simultaneously that a tax cut should be accompanied by a spending cut.

When he proposed, instead, that spending be maintained at existing or higher levels, he ran headlong into a special kind of conservatism—the kind politicians preach when they want to stay on the good side of middle class citizens who learned as children that spending more than they earned was a short cut to trouble.

These people cannot see a substantial difference between their own training and the proper procedure for their government.

THEY THOUGHT it was crazy when John Maynard Keynes told Franklin Roosevelt it made sense for a government to do what private individuals could not do. They think this new version of happy bankruptcy is just as nutty—and they think of it as irresponsible despite its backing by business spokesmen eager for a tax cut.

Hence, the idea of cutting off the pup's tail a little at a time. It would be better politics. It would make it harder for objectors to close the issue. Unless they watched closely, they might not even notice the puppy tail getting shorter.

of the Cuban invasion in April 1961. People who think this have pinpointed the blame down to a single decision — about airplanes that didn't show up to furnish air cover for the invaders.

Nobody is going to tell me with a straight face, I hope, that the only reason the invasion flopped was the airplanes. Cuba is a big place. It took Castro's whiskey friends many months to wear down an army nowhere near as well-equipped as his army was in 1961.

Whether the 1961 invasion would have been successful or not is anyone's guess. I object to the specious reasoning that it was not successful solely because of one decision by one man.

This one man is the quarterback of our team. While he has this responsibility I'm with him. All the way. Most clearly and certainly I am not with second-guessers talking as if they had moved to some other country and been transformed into critical spectators of their own country.

All of this prompts me to wonder if we shouldn't be teaching the meaning of loyalty to kids in school, along with all the other stuff we think is indispensable to education. There still is such a thing, as loyalty, I hope. Or are people like your aunt and me old parties who have lived past our time and got mixed up with some weird future that won't even resemble the past?

We propose to be loyal to the idea of representative democracy. This means being loyal to the people who have been elected to run things in the name of all of us.

Give our regards to all and sundry. COTTON CORNERS UNCLE GEORGE

Harold Brown Elected By W. Reserve Board

BERLIN CENTED — Harold Brown was chosen president of the Western Reserve School District Board of Education at its re-organization meeting Monday night. He replaces Francis Miller.

Vice-president for the new year is Dr. Paul Olson who takes Theodore Keck's place.

The group voted to retain its regular meeting time—the third Wednesday of the month—and to alternate meeting places between the Berlin and Ellsworth buildings, starting with Berlin on Jan. 16 at 8 p.m.

A sum of $70,000 was temporarily appropriated to pay bills the first quarter and a service fund was established to meet the expenses of the board.

Five bids on two new 66-passenger buses were received last night, but a decision on the successful company will await the next meeting. Superintendent Maurice Jones said.

Since the State Department of Education pays upwards of 70 per cent of the cost of new school buses, it is required that the buses be pressed into use for at least 10 years. However, the Western Reserve Board has requested they be allowed to get rid of an eight-year-old van ahead of the recommended period since it is mechanically defective.

A discussion of building plans for the new high school will constitute the bulk of the Jan. 16 meeting. Supt. Jones and Robert Buchanan of Smith, Buchanan and Smith, Youngstown architectural firm, met today to review the plans.

The sale of bonds for the new school has been delayed from Jan. 16 until Jan. 30, Mr. Jones reported.

number west in 24 hours, plus passenger and baggage trains in the same period.

"With Routes 62 and 14-A placing traffic over this main railroad crossing and Route 45 traffic from the lower part of the County going west and northwest out of Salem on 62 and 14-A at a volume rate, we are at a loss to know what we must do.

"Many factory workers going to and from jobs in Salem have had to wait as high as 45 minutes to one hour to get to work. Route 9 traffic also has a problem at these crossings. When there is a breakdown on a long freight, we are completely cut off from the west side of town."

In May, 1961, E. S. Preston, director of the State highway department, wrote to the mayor, "We have placed this project on our future construction program." That same month, a conference at Columbus between Mayor Cranmer, County Democratic Chairman Don R. Gosney and state highway department officials spurred plans to secure state support of a W. State St. overpass.

Viewed As Probability
Problems entailed before the project could actually be entered into by the city occupied the attention of officials steadily for virtually two years. Suddenly last autumn, talk about the proposed overpass crescendoed, and the bridge over the railroad came to be viewed as a probability rather than a mere possibility.

So many persons showed up for the State Highway Department's hearing on the overpass project Friday afternoon, last Oct. 19, that the meeting which was first scheduled to be held in Council Chambers at City Hall, had to be moved minutes after it got underway to the Memorial Building.

Salem's police chief, fire chief a school bus driver and others testified that the overpass is needed for the sake of safety, convenience and the city's progress.

At this hearing a number of Salemites also voiced objection to the precise location of the proposed bridge, declaring that harm might befall business at industrial plants in the immediate area of the overpass location. Not a single speaker decried the idea of the overpass itself, however.

At the hearing, state highway department official William B. McKenna, replying to a question about the feasibility of putting the overpass 60 to 100 feet north of where it is presently planned, explained:

"If we do not eliminate the grade crossing, the Pennsylvania Railroad will not participate in the overpass project." The director also explained that to move the bridge off the present alignment would mean lengthening the project.

Completed Thanksgiving Day
All legislation needed before the state was able to finalize plans and advertise for bids was completed by City Council during a special Thanksgiving Day session when an emergency ordinance appropriating the city's share of the project was passed.

A Nov. 23 deadline by which necessary papers from the city had to be in New Philadelphia was followed by another deadline, Nov. 26, by which time official papers on the overpass project had to be in Columbus.

Mayor Cranmer this week received a letter from H. M. Phillips of Cleveland, regional manager of the Pennsylvania Road, assuring the mayor of the railroad's willingness to defray 10 per cent of the project cost.

The structure will begin 50 feet east of Sharp Ave., extend about 1,500 feet, going over the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and coming to an end 40 feet east of Jennings Ave.

There will be no removal of buildings in the area, according to present plans.

Mayor Cranmer said damages will be paid to owners of business establishments in the area whose businesses will be adversely affected by the construction of the overpass.

E. Palestine Council Okays Annexation

EAST PALESTINE—City Council Monday night gave final passage to an ordinance providing for annexation of portions of Unity Township north and west of the city limits.

The sections involved comprise an area of one and a half square miles and have a population of 750. The annexation, sought by petition, was approved by County Commissioners in October.

The annexation legislation was referred to county offices which will make adjustments in voting places and tax duplicates.

Council approved appointment of a resident engineer for the new municipal sewage treatment plant at a fee of $12,300 for 260 working days.

The engineer will be designated by Floyd G. Browne & Associates of Marion, firm which drafted plans for the $250,000 project. Work already is under way by the field, general contractor.

Council also agreed to continue its contract with Allis Chalmers Co. of Milwaukee for installation of a 7,500-kilowatt steam turbine at the municipal light plant.

The firm has announced discontinuance of production of steam turbines but agreed to furnish replacement parts and service for the life of the unit.

The turbine is a major unit of the $1 million improvement project at the plant.

Three members of Council announced plans to seek re-election. All Republicans, they are Chester R. Whitehouse, president; Charles H. Brant, 2nd Ward, and Wayne McCauley, 1st Ward.

Solicitor Explains Meters Bill Action

City Solicitor Tom Coe, commenting on the mandamus action filed as a "friendly suit" against City Auditor Helen Coyne to force payment of the city's $12,842 bill for parking meters, pointed out today that he "has always contended that payment of the contract was illegal but that payment of the claim was proper."

He pointed out that the auditor is charged with the duty of seeing that the funds of the city are paid only on legally-binding obligations and that the contract between Mayor Dean B. Cranmer and the Magee-Hale Park-O-Meter Co. "was not a legally-binding obligation, insofar as payment for this particular parking meter purchase was concerned."

Mayor Cranmer ordered the meters in 1961 from the Oklahoma City concern which earlier had been awarded a contract for a normal year's meter supplies. He has claimed all along that councilmen told him to go ahead and buy the meters, but a number of the councilmen now deny this. The city auditor has refused to honor the claim on the grounds that there never was a certification that money was in fund for the purchase.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT
Health Questions And Answers

Dr. Brandstadt

Q—I have had coronary heart disease and at times I get very tired. I asked my doctor if he could give me some vitamins for this but he told me they would not do me any good. A friend says that a certain vitamin tablet would help me. They are expensive but if they would help they would be worth it. What do you think?

A—Your doctor is right. If you have no vitamin deficiency—and you won't have if you eat a well-balanced diet—vitamin pills would be a waste of money.

A person who has had a heart attack must cut down on his activity for a while. Activity can usually be resumed gradually under your doctor's supervision but should never be carried to the point of fatigue.

Q—During the fifth month of my first pregnancy blood suddenly appeared in my urine. A urologist injected dye into my veins and X-rayed my kidneys.

He found that the blood was coming from my right kidney. With the birth of my daughter the bleeding stopped. I wasn't troubled with this while carrying my second child, but the third time there it was again in the fifth month. What causes this?

A—Blood in the urine is not a common complication of pregnancy. Several such cases, however, have been reported.

In some women it is caused by varicose veins in the bladder but in others, as was the case with you, no cause was found. All of the latter recovered and were apparently no worse off for having had this trouble.

Q—I have been taking glutethimide sleeping pills (Doriden) every night for six years. The drug was prescribed for me by a doctor but now I have the habit and I want to break it. What do you suggest?

A—Glutethimide is a habit-forming drug. Since once the habit is formed the withdrawal symptoms may be unpleasant, I know of no way to break it short of placing yourself under strict medical supervision in a hospital.

Q—Is phenobarbital habit-forming? When I take it I seem to get short of breath. Do you think I should tell my doctor or is this the way the drug should act?

A—Phenobarbital is habit-forming and should be taken only under the guidance of a physician. It does not ordinarily cause shortness of breath so, if you get short of breath when you take it, you should have your doctor determine the cause of this symptom.

Q—I had jaundice when I was 6. I am now told that I cannot be a blood donor. What effect would my childhood jaundice have on the blood of my four children?

A—The virus of hepatitis may remain in the blood indefinitely after complete recovery from an attack of jaundice.

This is the reason no one with a history of hepatitis is accepted as a donor. The virus, however, is not passed through the placenta to your children, and they may become donors.

Noted Authority on Animals Returns to Television Show

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—An old favorite has returned to network television with undiminished charm, it is a pleasure to report. That is Marlin Perkins, the eminent naturalist with his fascinating tales of nature.

Perkins, now head of the St. Louis Zoo and a bit snowier atop after five years away, still has his way with beasts, birds and reptiles—calm and gentle.

In the first program of "Wild Kingdom," the new Sunday afternoon series on NBC, Perkins undertook to demolish some familiar myths. He showed that elephants do not fear mice, although the baby elephant in the demonstration promptly and violently hosed the white mouse off his head in a subsequent illustration of how pachyderms drink. He also conducted experiments demonstrating that vultures see food and don't "smell death"; that cobras follow movements and do not dance to music (they have no ears); and that animals can't foretell weather any better than humans.

Salem Faces Powerful Harding At Warren Friday

Gardner Paces Veteran Squad Panthers Have 3-0 Mark In Loop Play

Salem and Warren cage coaches are preparing their squads to what promises to be one of the 'classics' of the current basketball campaign Friday night at Warren.

"We are working on a special support defense and polishing up offensive maneuvers for Warren," commented Salem Coach John Cabas yesterday.

"We have a strong bench. It would hurt us only if our big man Gardner was unable to play or fouled out early in the contest," says Harding mentor Dick Boyd.

Boyd warns Salem fans to come to Warren early for tickets. The Canton McKinley-Harding clash last Saturday drew a record 2,400 fans. The game was a complete sell-out.

The doors at Harding Field House will open at 6 p.m., and the preliminary tilt between the schools' reserve units will start at 7 p.m.

A LIMITED number of tickets for the game are on sale at Fisher's News Agency and Heddleston's Pharmacy at one dollar for adults. Students may purchase their ducats at the athletic director's office at Senior High for 50 cents.

Coach Cabas also planned to practice Salem against a press. The Panthers, it is reported, have one almost as effective as the Quakers.

Harding has rolled to an 8-1 record this season and the Panthers lead the Ohio Big 8 Basketball Conference with a 3-0 mark.

The Panthers have size, experience, good outside shooting and a tremendous amount of cage savvy. It is by far the best Harding team in the past 20 years and rated by some Warren fans, the greatest in the history of the school.

What Harding will try to do is work the ball to Jim Gardner, 6-7 center, and from there carry out other offenses.

GARDNER HOLDS many of the individual cage marks at Harding. He is averaging 28.9 a game so far this season.

Other starters for the Panthers include Dick Androsko, 6-1/2 junior; Bill Mink, 5-10 1/2 senior; Mike Richey, 5-10 1/2 junior; and Eric Snyder, 6-2 1/2 senior.

Boyd said, "If we have a weakness, it would have to be our defensive rebounding."

Cabas, who has guided the Quakers to four straight victories following two defeats in the first three clashes, will find out just how far Salem has come.

The game, undoubtedly the top cage event in the district this weekend, will be an acid test for Salem.

THE RED AND BLACK were beaten by Massillon 70-62 during the third game of the campaign Dec. 12. Harding whipped the Tigers 77-62 Dec. 15.

The Quakers' probable starting lineup will include Bill Beery, Bob King, Marlin Waller, Rich Sweitzer and Rick Platt.

Beery has been averaging 22 points a game in seven tilts, while King has hauled in an average of 17 rebounds for the same amount of contests.

Hornung, Karras Are Named In Rumored NFL Fix Scandal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two more star names, Paul Hornung and Alex Karras, have been introduced as reports of a betting scandal continued to swirl around the National Football League.

Amid the rumors and conjectures Monday, these concrete developments came to light:

1. That Hornung, celebrated halfback for the champion Green Bay Packers, was revealed as a friend and potential business associate of a man who admittedly has bet heavily on pro football games.

2. That the same man employs Phil Handler, assistant coach of the Chicago Bears, and is acquainted with Bear fullback Rick Casares, who already has figured in the widely publicized investigation.

3. That a bar business partner of Karras, standout defensive tackle for the Detroit Lions, has been questioned about gambling, presumably by FBI agents.

4. That the Senate Investigations subcommittee planned a probe of the situation and that the NFL was continuing its own investigation.

Despite these new developments, there still has been no disclosure of wrongdoing. News of the NFL's investigation came into the open last Friday when it was revealed that George Halas, owner-coach of the Bears and co-founder of the league 42 years ago, had asked NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle to look into published rumors of a brewing scandal.

The NFL's official stand is that it will not discuss specific individuals or cases. The consensus of league players, coaches and club officials is that there is no substance to rumors of a betting scandal.

However, it is known that wagering on NFL games is a big business and has grown with the popularity of the immensely successful league.

Bets $90,000 A Season

Chicago's American said Monday that Abe Samuels, who admitted betting up to $90,000 in a single football season, knew Hornung, Handler and Casares. The newspaper quoted the lumber company owner and duplicating machine executive as saying he had known Hornung for about 10 years and had offered him a duplicating machine franchise for Louisville, and had employed Handler as a lumber salesman for about 10 or 12 years.

The American also reported Casares as saying, "I've met Abe Samuels a few times, but I knew him as a business man."

Casares said last Saturday that he had taken two lie detector tests at the request of the league, one in 1961 and the other late last month, and had answered "no" to questions about fixing games, offered bribes and intentionally fumbling.

Says He Knows Samuels

Hornung told the American he had known Samuels for some time and was interested in the duplicating machine franchise. The halfback also said he had never been approached about shaving points in a game, had never been asked to take a lie detector test and knew of no teammate who had been.

Karras' involvement in the investigation was revealed by the Detroit News. The News said that Jim Butsicaris, partner with his brother John and Karras in a Detroit bar, had been questioned by FBI men at the bar last week.

At Los Angeles, where he is working out for the NFL Pro Bowl game Sunday, Karras told The Associated Press that he had been told by Jim Butsicaris that several police were talking to him last Sunday. "He didn't say what kind of questions. Just questions about gambling and that sort of thing."

Cincy Gets All 44 1st Places In Poll

By JOE REICHLER

Twenty-nine victories in a row, 11 this season, 96 games without a defeat at home and six consecutive weeks as the nation's No. 1 college basketball team. That's Cincinnati's enviable record today as the Bearcats again stand on top in the weekly Associated Press poll.

The Bearcats swept the boards, getting all 44 first-place votes from the panel of sports writers and sportscasters for a perfect 440 points.

Loyola of Chicago's high-scoring Ramblers clung to the runner-up spot, but three members of last week's top ten were knocked out of the elite group while undefeated North Carolina and thrice-beaten West Virginia moved into the select circle.

The ousted teams were Kentucky, UCLA and Auburn.

Last Year's State Champs Not As Strong

Scholastic Cage Races Wide Open

By FRITZ HOWELL

Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Hamilton Taft and New Lebanon Dixie, rated off their early-season records, figure to surrender their state high school basketball championships—but Ohio is filled with worthy aspirants to their thrones.

Taft, the Class AA king, has lost three of nine games. Dixie, the A champ, has been dumped twice in seven starts.

Rolling along toward tournament time with unblemished records are such standouts as Cleveland East Tech, Middletown, Dayton Chaminade, Kettering Fairmont, Marietta, Cincinnati Roger Bacon, Mansfield St. Peter and several others in Class AA.

Unblemished Class A Clubs

The unblemished Class A clubs include Waynesfield, Bladensburg, Beaver of Pike County, Clyde and Mount Gilead. Ayersville's Pilots, 1957 and 1961 state champs and semi-finalists last year, lost 46-42 to Archbold Friday for their fourth setback in 12 starts—three of the defeats by two-point margins. Steubenville's Big Red, Urbana and Dayton Colonel White were among the Class AA teams to fall for the first time last weekend. Steubenville was a 62-57 victim of Wierdon, Pa.; Urbana's 33-game Central Buckeye League string was snapped 65-57 by Mount Vernon, and Colonel White was nipped 72-48 by Chaminade.

From here and there: Kettering Fairmont (11-0) has won 30 straight in the Southwest Buckeye loop. Dayton Belmont made it 8-0 with a 50-49 squeaker over Toledo Libbey Saturday.

Bob Klopfer of Germantown and Don Rather of Sandusky wasted scoring splurges. Bob's 40 were futile in a 78-68 loss to Jefferson, and Don's 28 came in a 61-57 loss to Mansfield. But Milt Pitts of Mansfield St. Peter made his 44 count in the 106-63 win over Ontario.

Dayton sings the praises of 6-foot-6 Ken Calloway who scored 26 in Chaminade's 72-48 victory over Colonel White.

Paint Valley of Ross County, regional qualifier last year, has four of five starters back for a 7-2 record. The team is first in the Ross County League with 4-0, last in the Scioto Valley Conference with 0-2.

So Whats Happening
Worthington defeated Mount Vernon 72-41; Urbana beat Worthington 57-31; Mount Vernon beat Urbana 65-57.

Bladensburg (9-0) has hit the 99-point mark twice and is averaging 74.5. Wakeman Western Reserve (5-1) has a top college prospect in 6-8 Mike Hyde, who is averaging 25.5. Norwalk (8-0) has another in 6-8 John Schroeder, who is averaging 27.4.

Jim Gardner, 6-7 Warren Panther senior, is averaging 28.7, has a single-game record of 40 and a career total of 995. The Panthers (8-1) lost only to Uniontown, the Pennsylvania champ, 54-48 in the Farrell, Pa., Christmas tourney.

Longest Game In History
Martins Ferry and St. Clairsville played the longest game in Ohio cage history Friday. They were tied 63-63 at the regulation finish and needed nine overtimes before Ferry won 69-67 on a jump shot from the corner by Mike Lucas. The tilt lasted 59 minutes, just 5 under the two-game time.

Oak Hill ran into once-beaten Jackson and froze the ball at the outset. The Oaks stayed in the stall as Jackson peeked away at the basket, and didn't score until the Ironmen led 2-0 with 4:31 to go. Led by standout Ed Sprigg's 15 points, Jackson won 32-6.

Wins $9,000 With 3-Stroke Margin

Arnold Palmer Travels East With LA Open Golf Title

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There isn't much left in golf for Arnold Palmer to win but more money. The reigning king of the sport heads East today with a check for $9,000. It represented his first-place finish for the first time in eight tries in the Los Angeles Open.

The only other major plum left for Palmer to pluck is the United States PGA Championship. Palmer has won the U.S. Open, the Master's and the British Open. Until last year he had not captured the Tournament of Champions event at Las Vegas nor the Colonial Invitational at Fort Worth. Palmer corrected the latter situation in 1962.

Palmer had finished no better than seventh in the Los Angeles fixture—a treasured title.

Shoots 5 Under Par 66

Palmer erased the embarrassments Monday. He shot a 5-under-par 66 for a 72-hole score of 274, three strokes better than was necessary.

It wasn't easy. Palmer started out three strokes behind the leader, Art Wall Jr., but after nine holes Arnold was in front by one stroke over Don Fairfield and Huston LaClair.

Midway on the backside Palmer was in a tie with Wall and Fairfield. The excitement and intensity were considerable.

Birdies 16th and 17th Holes
Then Palmer birdied the 16th and 17th holes. The 17th goes down as the shot of the tournament, undoubtedly the deciding blow.

Using a putter, Palmer hit sharply from 50 feet in back of and below the green. The ball resembled a rocket. It sped straight to the cup and plopped in.

There was even an echo as it reached the pin.

Wall encountered three straight bogies starting with the 15th and finished with a 74 for 279.

LaClair fell back with a 72 for

20. And Fairfield got into extreme difficulties with the trees on the 15th and quit quietly with a triple bogey 7 and a 70 for 278.

Al Balding of Canada had a 67 and PGA champion Gary Player of South Africa a 69 for 277 and $3,800 apiece.

A word from THERON at the Country Store

1963 does look good for us out here at the Country Store. What makes us so happy is that so many people who seemed to do very little shopping last year are back with us again loading up on those every day low prices. Right now the store is not at its best because we have been changing things around. In a few more days everything will be in its new spot where it will remain for a long time, we hope.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

DEAR HELOISE: Never discard an empty milk carton. We use two or three a day as we have four children to help with that project. Each carton is washed and later used. Here's how:

Have a pet? Why clean out a daily dish for the cat or dog? Just cut the carton down to size, fill with food, and if there is some left, throw the whole mess out and start with a clean carton. We have enough dishes to wash without washing an extra one.

That pouring spout on the carton is just right to water house plants. No spills!

When you must share the ice box with your husband's fish, in his crowded boat . . . pack your lunch in empty milk cartons. Fill them tight and it won't get mashed or soggy from melting ice. No containers to carry home either when the picnic is over.

Before the days of garbage disposals, I stuffed all of my garbage into empty milk cartons, and sealed them tightly. No messy garbage pail to clean, no drippings all over everywhere, and most of all no mess around the pail!

MRS. ROY KNIGHT

DEAR HELOISE: In scrubbing potatoes for baking, I use one of the new stainless steel pot scrapers now in the market. I keep one especially for this purpose. (They only cost a quarter.) They practically never wear out and they scrub potatoes beautifully.

We like to eat skins and all and we can without any qualms . . . knowing they are scrubbed clean!

MRS. E. P. MILLER

DEAR FOLKS: Please clip and save any household hint in this column that appeals to you. We do not have back issues of previous columns, so if you want to remember a hint, get out that scissors now!

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I have always had trouble keeping rust off my cast iron cookingware. I could never seem to dry it well enough. My mother-in-law suggested after drying the ironware that I rub it well with about one tablespoon of salt. It works. No more rust!

SUSAN DIMON.

DEAR HELOISE: For those who burn toast, biscuits, etc., every morning in their broilers and ovens, and burn their hands taking them out of the oven to put them in the sink or outdoors . . . use your ice pick!

Take the ice pick, stab each piece of toast or bun in the middle, adding one on top of the other. Soon your ice pick will be full.

Take the ice pick to your garbage disposal or outdoors, and push the burned bread off into its "resting place".

Now isn't that a nice word? BURNT TOAST WIFE

It works! I held this letter three weeks . . . and finally burned my toast. Aren't garbage cans great?

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Here's another little-known gem: Whenever I am using canned vegetables and the oven is on, I open the can of vegetables, and remove the label (this is most important!) and place the can on the floor of the oven.

After 15 minutes, the can of vegetables is hot. I remove it and put it right into my serving dish. Out into the garbage goes that tin can! No pot to wash and dry, and no extra fuel cost!

DEAN KATZ.

DEAR HELOISE: To get tar out of clothes, rub with sugar and lard. Wash as usual to remove the lard.

BARBARA SAVER.
